

In rural Tanzania, farming is a way of life. Families pass down traditional knowledge to help grow crops like beans and maize. But climate change is making the weather harder to predict. Rain ...

Climate change introduces complex challenges to these efforts, influencing the ecological and epidemiological dynamics of malaria transmission. This review examines the impacts of ...

Call for applications: MSc Partial Scholarships in Artificial Intelligence and Climate Change Research Project Project Outline The University of Dar es Salaam (UDSM), through the ...

The advocacy effort developed by the Economic and Social Council of Burkina Faso, aided by technical support from UCESA, reflects citizens' perceptions of the real effects of climate ...

More than 150,000 farmers in the northern parts of Benin will benefit from the financing worth USD 30.3 Million in aid of climate resilient agriculture. The African Development Bank Group has ...

Are you a young entrepreneur in Africa with a bold solution for climate resilience? The 2025 In-country YouthADAPT Challenge is now open to youth-led MSMEs and innovators tackling ...

Overview Food systems are vulnerable to the effects of climate change. The effects on yields and supply chains are likely to make nutritious diets increasingly unaffordable and inaccessible, and exacerbate existing issues with diet quality ...

In Kenya and Tanzania, traditional pastoralist migratory patterns are being recognised for their adaptive logic amid rising heat. These practices are now being integrated into national climate ...

Climate change tanzania

Web: <https://www.ekusenitours.co.za>