I have a 90 watt Go Power suitcase solar panel with 40 feet of cable that I plug directly into my Furrion solar port. I also have a Renogy 50 amp DC-DC charger with MTTP controller that controls alternator and solar charging, but it is not set up yet. I have ordered two, 200 watt solar panels that I will also use in suitcase fashion.

I do not have a solar charge controller installed, but there is a cut out spot where I can add one, and I do know the roof is pre-wired for solar and there is an SAE connector on the front bumper. My questions are: 1. I (think) the max number of watts I can add in solar with the current wiring is 360 (30amps * 12) - is this correct? 2.

Hello everyone! I just purchased a Micro Minnie 2106 FBS. I am taking my first "break-in" trip at the end of the month and am very excited. I was curious though as to any recommendations for a solar panel and how exactly to use it with my Minnie.

Our new trailer came with two 180W solar panels on the roof. solar setup. We love the standard solar package that came with our GeoPro. It has really met our needs and we've used it a lot now. However, in some climates or even shaded campsites, the stock 100W solar panel just can't keep up.

Here is a link to my 2106DS solar install. Our 2016 2106DS did not come with a solar port so I installed a Furrion port, I think they look better and do the same thing as the Zamp ports. Honestly, in Pennsylvania where we camp, solar doesn't do us much good. We mostly camp in partially wooded non-electric sites.

Battery storage options have improved dramatically in 2021, with better products and lower prices, which makes investing in battery the sensible choice. Battery storage enables you to store excess solar and also charge from lower off-peak ...

That issue with polarity is important. I think FR could have done much better with this feature. The Go Power solar controller accepts 2 panels in parallel (same voltage extra current) as in the image below taken from the manual, I believe they should have connected the plug directly to the controller instead of the battery, so we could charge the battery bank with ...
