Are solar panels a scam?

That is, of course, also a scam. To protect yourself from clean energy scams: Know that "free" or "no cost" solar panel offers are scams. The federal government does not install solar systems in homes for free. If you're considering whether solar energy is right for you, check out the Department of Energy's guide for homeowners and learn more.

Is my solar panel installer going out of business?

If you're not sure whether your solar panel installer has gone out of business, and a cold caller is insisting they are taking over, don't take their word for it. In this instance, it turned out to be a scam. Instead, check your original installer's website and try the contact details you were given when your panels were installed.

How many complaints have been filed with BBB about solar energy companies?

People filed roughly 13,000 complaints with BBB last year about solar energy companies including contractors, equipment dealers and installers. The St. Louis Consumer Fraud Task Force warned about misleading solar sales last year. Remember: Well-intentioned companies will give you time to consider their offer.

How do you know if a solar system is a scam?

Ask for a list of satisfied customers and look at customer reviews online. Know that the government won't offer you free solar. The federal government does not install residential solar panels for free; if someone is claiming otherwise, it's probably a scam. If it seems too good to be true, it probably is.

Are 'fake' solar companies a scam?

Beware of any company asking you to make a big deposit before they have completed their installation. This is one of the most common ways 'fake' solar companies have targeted consumers - whereby they take a hefty deposit and then never turn up to carry out the installation. This is common solar scam.

What if my company offers solar energy?

If your company offers solar energy, remember that claims must not only be truthful, but also comply with established consumer protection laws, including the FTC Act and the FTC's new Impersonation Rule. Be truthful. Every clean energy company has a responsibility to be honest and upfront with consumers. Be transparent about what you're offering.
